

Abstract

A method and computer system for structure subset generation for multiple databases is disclosed. The method retrieves a database view object structure. The method includes inputting definition language specifying a database view identifier and with at least one directly or indirectly referenced database object unqualified with a containing database identifier. The method further includes inputting a show statement that identifies the database view identifier and outputting the definition language with each directly or indirectly referenced database object qualified with its containing database identifier.

20251016 10:56:49